Upgrading Due Fannin, 22nd, Industrial Road

Improvements in Cameron are among work included in the 1975-76 Urban Systems Program recently approved by the Texas Highway Commission.

Work approved includes:

1. Reconditioning and upgrading Fannin Avenue from SH 36, north to 22 Street. The estimate cost of this 1.0 mile section is $40,000.

2. Reconditioning and upgrading 22 Street from Fannin Avenue, northwest to US 77, a distance of 0.2 mile. The estimate cost of this project is $10,000.

3. Building Industrial Road parallel to the railroad from Door Factory Road to 22 Street and reconditioning 22 Street from Industrial Road to US 77. This section is 0.8 mile in length and estimated to cost $50,000.

All the projects proposed for Cameron must be reviewed and approved by the Federal Highway Administration prior to execution of a construction agreement with the City.

District Engineer Joe G. Hanover of Bryan said the work in Cameron is part of a 93.1 million dollar statewide program to help improve traffic flow in urban areas.

The 1975-76 Urban System Program includes 272 miles of street and highway improvements in population centers, plus federal assistance for hike and bike trail development and purchase of buses in Houston.

All of the projects were selected by local officials with the concurrence of the Texas Highway Department.

The design and construction of projects proposed for Cameron will be under the supervision of Delton A. Kittrell, Supervising Resident Engineer of Hearne.

UR Project Is Included In Horizons Program

Cameron's urban renewal project has been selected for inclusion in the Horizons on Display Program of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA).

A. W. McCullin, urban renewal director, said his office will send in a resume of the local program along with pictures showing "before and after."

Purpose of the Horizons program is to focus on demonstrated solutions to community problems. National recognition will be given to 200 outstanding examples of community achievement according to a letter to McCullin from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Deisgnated projects will illustrate successful approaches to solving contemporary problems in a broad range of subject areas: urban design, neighborhood preservation, urban revitalization, rural development, economic development, environmental management, energy, transportation, recreation, education, health, racial, and ethnic cooperation, communications, citizen participation, and many others.

Thorndale Girl Crowned Queen For Folk Fete

A Thorndale girl was crowned Folk Fete Queen Thursday night as 14 contestants tried for the title and a $50 savings bond for first place winner.

This year's queen is Tami Gray of Thorndale, seventeen-year-old senior at Thorndale High School. First runnerup was Monica Ottea of Hearne and second runnerup was Leslie Luecke of Cameron.

Judges for the contest were L.R. Patterson of Temple, president of Tem-Tex Corp; Harold Whittington, TJC professor; Jody Grant of Grant Studios, Waco; Susan Diamond of Rockdale; and Sid Duderstadt of Cameron's Ben Milam Savings & Loan.

The queen was presented at Friday night's dance at the armory and rode on a special float in Saturday's parade.

Lafferty Named Missions Director

J. E. Lafferty, former pastor of the First Baptist Church for a number of years in Cameron, has left his preaching job and become director of Area Missions for the Baptist FIRM area.

He will be counseling with 70 churches in the multi-county area and will move his home to Rockdale.

While in Cameron, Lafferty was active in civic affairs, including the Chamber of Commerce and the Noon Lions Club.

The local church will be serviced by supply ministers until another pastor is hired.

CDA To Spearhead June Cleanup Drive

"We;ve got to get Cameron cleaned up." That's the word from A. W. McCullin, director of the Community Development Agency, which is spearheading a cleanup drive during June.

McCullin said the Agency will have Manpower help this summer which will be used in the cleanup effort. He also said a mowing service is available for cleaning up high weeds on vacant lots.

McCullin said the city has been told more tha n once by HUD that the city must clean up and enforce codes and ordinances or it can forget about future funding.

Owners of vacant, dilapidated houses will be notified to tear down the structure and clean off the lot, or to sign a release for the Agency to do so. He said notices were going out in the mail this month.

Owners will have the option of cleaning up or letting the Agency do it, he added.

"The federal government says Cameron must clean up or forget future funding," McCullin said. "The ordinances must be enforced."

High weeds in vacant lots are harboring mosquitoes, which are bad this spring because of all the rain. Lot owners may call the Aency to be put in contact with a mowing service. McCullin said these lots must be cleaned off.

Residents who have debris from their yards and lots may call the Agency and McCullin said the debris would be picked up. Even old cars will be carried off, he said, if desired.

"We need the cooperation of the people of Cameron if the cleanup is to be successful," he stated.

TP&L Warns Of Power Blackouts

Massive electric blackouts and brownouts were predicted by Texas Power & Light Company president, J. F. Skelton, if natural gas is prohibited as a boiler fuel for generators at Texas power plants.

Skelton filed his comments Tuesday with the Texas Railroad Commission during a hearing in Austin regarding the banning of natural gas for producing electric power.

"We are acutely aware of the energy problems in Texas, both now and in the future, and we share the concern of the Texas Railroad Commission with regard to our dwindling supply of natural gas," Skelton said. "But if the Railroad Commission were to prohibit the use of gas as a boiler fuel in the next five to ten years--or even longer--Texas Power & Light Company would simply be unable to generate the electricty required byits customers."

He explained that 85 percent of TP&L's generating capacity is dependent on natural gas. Without this important fuel, he declared, "hospitals, scools, industries, and residences would suffer massive brownouts and blackouts."

Skelton further explained that TP&L is phasing out natural gas as a boiler fuel as quickly as possible by constructing lignite-and nuclear-fueled power plants.

"Orderly developmentof this plan depends on the availability to use of a substantial amount of natural gas for many years," he emphasized.

"Speaking frankly, it would be impossible for us to replace all our natural gas-fueled plants with coal--or nuclear-fueled plants in less than 20 years," he said.

Skelton pointed out to the Commission that the engineering and construction of these plants requires many years, plus the expenditure of several billion dollars

"The new financing necessary is massive, and it will take many years to raise the billions needed," he said.

Regarding the use of oil, Skelton uid "it is sheer folly to talk about substituting fueld oil for all the natural gas now used in electric generating plants. Such a substitution would have caused us to burn over one billion gallons of oil last year. Domestic oil is more scarce than natural gas, and imported oil increases our dependency on foreign nations--at a time when our country needs to become less dependent," he said.

Folk Fete Thanks...

Well, this town and area may have worked harder on other projects, but none seemed to show greater concentration on the finer points of festival production.

Folk Fete crowds were good, perhaps better than ever. And a lot of people are in the final stages of withdrawal after a busy, fun weekend.

We imagine that total gates, money derived and events completed, including the now famous Texas Thoroughbred Armadillo Race, will be a record for Folk Fete.

If it isn't well, just a lots of thousands had more fun for a few bucks than just a lot of places they can go these days.

To the media of Central Texas, newspapers, television, radio, we say thanks. And to the hundreds of volunteers, along with the special talent, what can we say, except hope it was as much fun as this diversity of Milam talent can make it.

Tassles And Liniment...

Something unique in bidding on projects was the Army's calling for bids from companies to furnish go-go dancers for the Fort Hood club system.

Twenty-seven firms, one report said, inquired about the Fort Hood contract, which is granted for a year. Current contract for go-go girls expires June 30, completing a $45,500 payment to a Copperas Cove firm for the year.

Fort Hood has a self-supporting club system which began contracting for go-go girls in post clubs to keep soldiers from undesirable off-post nightspots.

Five firms are in the bidding for a new contract.

We wonder what part of the budget is for tassles and liniment?

Peking Defines Bourgeois

By David Rogers
PEKING

Reuter--How do you spot a bourgeois? As China accelerates its campaign against bourgeois elements among its 800 million people, the question is taking on growing importance.

Since last February, bourgeois life-sytle, bourgeois rights, and bourgeois thinking have been under constant attack in a new Leninist movement aimed at assuring "the dictatorship of the Proletariat."

But in a nation that is probably closer to pure Communist than any other who are the bourgeois types?

According to Peking's propaganda there are certain obvious varieties--former landlords and factory owners, rich peasants, righist, and counter-revolutionaries.

An article in the Shanghai Theoreticul magazine study and criticism has now provided more detailed guidance on how to identify a Chinese-style bourgeious.

It gives 10 examples of the bourgeois habits that China's leaders want to eradicate. If guilty of the following, one is, in Peking's eyes, a bourgeois.

--Revelling in high office without reading books, newspapers, or carrying out theoretical study.

--Loafing around allday, going to the doctor when one is not sick, and taking long convalenceses to "look at scenery."

--Assuming the airs of a hero and seeking fame and position.

--Being afraid of hardship and striving for a comfortable life.

Gossiping, greed, and nepotism are also among the bourgeois offenses listed by the magazine. Other examples include:

--Displaying a "philistine attitude and vulgar taste" by resorting to flattery and boasting.

--Extravagant eating and drinking.

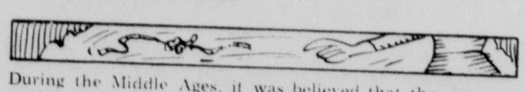
--Adopting a "you scratch my back, I scratch your back" attitude and giving away state property.

The final example mentioned by Study and Criticism is covering errors and excuses and spreading grapevine news.

The magazine, published by Shanghai's Futan University, says there are no excuses for a bourgeois lifestyle, even for those who have performed noble revolutionary deeds in the past.

It firmly rejects claims that the question of lifestyle is unimportant and makes it clear that China's Communist Party expects from the people in the future.

Quoting from the works of Chairman Mao Tse-Tung, the magazine says, that if China is to take a correct political line, "the people must maintain a pattern of plain living and hard struggle."



During the Middle Ages, it was believed that the consummation of marriage could be prevented by anyone who, while the wedding ceremony was taking place, either locked a lock or tied a knot in a cord, and then threw the lock or cord away.

Chile's Political Activities Slipping

By Andrew Tarnowski
SANTIAGO

Reuter--The total ban on political activities in Chile is slipping slightly after less than two years of military rule. But it is a slip to the right only.

Groups of rightist s are forming a "Movimiento de Unidad Nacional" (National Unity Movement) to rally civilian support for the military junta headed by President Augusto Pinochet.

Since it seized power in September 1973, the junta has dissolved leftwing parties and rigidly imposed a "political recess" on all other parties.

But authorities turned a blind eye when 350 rightists gathered at the small town of Codeguar outside Santiago on April 26 for the founding meeting of the new movement--known by its intiuals as the "MUN".

Another founding member, civil pilot Jorge Prat Alemparte, put it more concisely: "In September 1973, a revolution began in Chile, and the military arm of the revolution was beginning to find itself isolated.

MUN leaders also indicated that they had acted to prevent clandestine groups filling the political vacuum created by military rule.

"We have delayed, we should have started this last year," Vilarin said, "because undoubtedly there are political groups in Chile which are not respecting the political recess. They are in permanent activity...

"We moved because we know that the Communist Party and the Christian Democrats are the only groups with the resources to carry on underground.

They are not trying to help Chile recover, but are trying to recover power," he added. "The Christian Democrats would do anything to get back power. They would make a pact with the devil if necessary."

The new movement aims to have branches in every urban district, province, and region, based on nine-member cells form apartment block and street level upwards, to support the military junta at ever y level of society.

It is open to "persons who swear to respect and advance the declaration of principles of the military juanta...and who, in the opinon of the movemen, have the required characteristics of patriotsm, honor, and personal integrity."

"All well-born Chileans will find the door open" Vilarin said. "By that I mean Chileans who support Chile."

The movements creed is contained in an eight-point statement approved at the founding meeting, and known as the "Declaration of Codegua."

It declared support for President Pinochet and the military government, repudiation of the party system, de-politicization of Chilean institutions and unmasking of international Marxism and its supporters and fellow-travellers in Chile.

Another founding member, civil pilot Jorge Prat Alemparte, put it more concisely: "In September 1973, a revolution began in Chile, and the military arm of the revolution was beginning to find itself isolated.

MUN leaders also indicated that they had acted to prevent clandestine groups filling the political vacuum created by military rule.

"We have delayed, we should have started this last year," Vilarin said, "because undoubtedly there are political groups in Chile which are not respecting the political recess. They are in permanent activity...

"We moved because we know that the Communist Party and the Christian Democrats are

Since then a nine-man organizing committee has been rapidly setting up a nationwide organization, and the government's silence so far appears to indicate offical tolerance or even support.

Some Chileans are skeptical about the movement's apparently spontaneous formation and independence from the government.

"The MUN is colorless and aims to camouflage the military stamp of the government," one Chilean explained.

MUN branches have already been set up in eight provinces, and 11 more will shortly be established, a spokesman said.

He said the movement already has 5,000 members and hoped to rally 80 percent of the population.

"Our movement is not a political party," declared Leon Vilarin, a prominent member of the organizing committee. "It is a very heterogeneous civil movement in full agreement with the principles of the government."

Vilarin is president of Chile's powerful truck owners' federation which in 1972 and 1973 hastened the downfall of President Salvador Allende's Marxist government with two long and crippling transport strikes.

"At this moment Chile is entering the depths of an economic crisis," Vilarin uaid. "We civilians who called for this government have an obligation to back it precisely now, when it is taking the toughest economic measures."

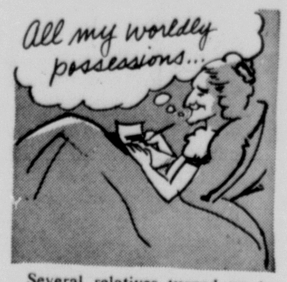
A single-engine airplane with four seats travels two to three times as fast as the family car yet gets 14 to 18 miles per gallon, reports Piper Aircraft Corporation.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"All My Worldly Possessions"

People who write their own wills often have a weakness for flowery phrases. Unfortunately, literary style does not count in the interpretation of legal documents. Take the case of a well-meaning widow who left "all my worldly possessions" to a beloved friend.

Clearly, this included her personal belongings. But did it also include a sizeable piece of real estate that she owned?



Several relatives turned up in court, insisting they were entitled to the realty. After years of litigation, the beloved friend lost out. The court said that, as nearly as it could figure out from the context, the widow had not intended the disputed language to cover real estate.

In another homemade will case, the phrase "personal things" proved to be a stumbling block. A woman left "my jewelry and other personal things" to her two sisters.

But a brother promptly laid claim to her stocks, bonds, and cash, which he said were not "personal things." However, there was evidence that the woman had often spoken of the securities and the money as her "things." Accordingly, the court decided they were all included in the bequest to the sisters.

Even the plainest of words can turn out to be ambiguous when put under close scrutiny by rival claimants to an estate. Major court battles have been waged over the meaning of "house," "farm," and "barn," not to mention "if," "and," "or," "to," and even "et cetera."

True, homemade wills sometimes do work out satisfactorily. But generally speaking, disposing of an estate is no job for an amateur. The person who writes his own will won't be available when it goes into effect, to explain what he meant. Too often, that becomes the business of the courts.

Reuters International News Briefs

PRINCETON, N.J.

About 100 scientists, technicians, and government officials met here quietly last week to discuss a project that could eventually transfer most of the earth's industry, many of its people, and its energy resources to outer space. Thep plan, which began as a lark in the physics department at Princeton University, is now being taken seriously by a growing number of scientists.

VENICE

The saving of Venice, which is slowly sinking into the sea, is so important to one United Nations official that he believes it puts today's entire civilization on trial. "What we do with Venice is a prime test of our civiilzation," says Joseph Martin, the representative here of UNESDO (The United Nations Educational, scientific, and cultural organization.)

WASHINGTON

The effect of the American Revolution had on America is well known--independence and the creation of the United States. But its effect on Eurpoe is less well knows. To remedy this, the Library of Congress, as part of its bicentennial program, recently held a symposium of historians to assess the revolution's impace on Britain, France, The Netherlands, Spain, and Portugal.

PRIZREN, YUGOSLAVIA

A new road will soon pass through this Turkish-style little southern Yugoslav town, by-passing the medieval stone bridge and the silver-tipped minarets, carrying traffic to the frontier with Albania. Yugoslavia's small hard-line Communist neighbor lies barely 12 miles west of here. "We hope the albanians will build their own road," a Yugoslav official said here, in the under-developed province of Kosovo.

NEW ORLEANS

Two American doctors have developed a non-surgical procedure for repairing heart defects that may elimintate, at least in many cases, the need for expensive and often-risky open heart surgery. Thep procedure which uses two patented umbrella-like devices to plug a hole in the heart wall, was developed by two doctors at Ochsner Foundation Hospital in New Orleans.

PARIS

A French company has built a huge reflector telescope to enable Europeans to study the galaxy from a mountain in Chile. The firm, Creusot-Loire, has dug a deep hole in one of its factory workshops to accommodate the 54-foot structure, which was commissioned by the European Southern Observatory. The firm ordered the telescope to observe the southern skies, mainly ignored by astronomers.

LONDON

Britons have long been accused of complacency about their deteriorating economy. Conservative opposition leader, Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, said this month they were an "eleventh-hour nation"--meaning they do not react to danger until the last moment. With sterling devalued by 25 percent over three years and inflation at twice the rate of major foreign competitiors, the British people have cause enough for anxiety.

ROME

Italians are now on the point of losing a unique record--that of enjoying more holidays per year than any other nation. Officially, Italy shares first place in the holiday league table with Mexico. Each has 17 civil and religious holidays--ahead of Spain and Canada with 16. West Germany with 15, and Brazil, Egypt, and Sweden with 13. But leisure-locing Italians manage to stretch their official days off to over 30 by the device of the long weekend.

Sports fans may find their title in controversy. Some word experts say fan comes from fanatic, others that its from fancy, the gentlemen who frequented prize fights in bygone days.

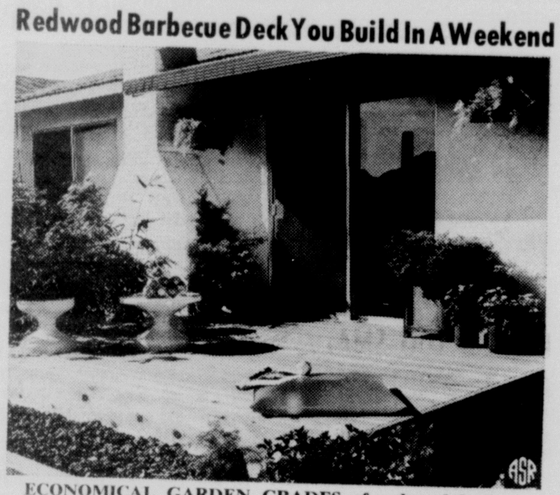
Redwood Barbecue Deck You Build In A Weekend



ECONOMICAL GARDEN GRADES of redwood lend their unique beauty and durability to this 10' by 12' barbecue deck.

Here's a weekend project guaranteed to garner enough family compliments and provide a big enough sense of accomplishment to carry you through the rest of the summer. It's a 10 by 12 foot redwood deck—perfect as a setting for family cookouts, a play area for the kids or a comfortable place for mom and dad to relax.

If you're reasonably handy with a hammer, saw and drill and can talk a friend into helping, you can start the deck Saturday morning and finish early enough on Sunday to fire up the barbecue and celebrate your handiwork by grilling steaks in unaccustomed style.

The deck is built from the economical garden grades of redwood, which provide the wood's unique beauty and durability plus a rustic knotty appearance that works best for outdoor uses. Use Construction Heart grade redwood for the sections of the deck that come in contact with the ground and Construction Common grade for the rest of the deck. It's wise to plan well ahead with your lumber dealer to be sure that the redwood you need will be on hand when you're ready to begin the deck.

You'll probably want to attach the deck directly to your home, as shown, atlhough free standing arrangements—under a large tree, for example, have also been quite successful. Keep easy access to the house in mind when you choose a location; the ideal spot often is adjacent to a door to the kitchen or family room.

NEWS FOR WOMEN

Fashion And Fragrance, 1975

Have you noticed what's happened to fashion, and to women, this year? The word is: softer. Also prettier. Also more feminine. Women aren't wearing costumes any more, they're wearing clothes.

And the clothes of Summer, 1975 are flowery, fresh, floating in many cases. Fabrics are finer, thinner, gauzier. They seem to waft about your body, making you feel, even though you're thoroughly contemporary, like a romantic.

Just as you're wearing flowers for all the world to see, so you're wearing more floral fragrances.

That's the beauty of fashion and fragrances this season: you can have flowers every day—to enhance your own fresh charms.

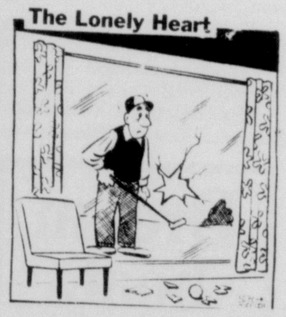
The Lonely Heart



Israel's Soccer Season Fanatical

By John Chadwick

TEL AVIV Reuter--Parliament and the judiciary here are embroiled in a big sports row following the noisiest and most fanatical soccer season in Israel's history.

The biggest demonstration for some time outside the Knesset (parliament) recently concerned not politics or the conflict with the Arabs, but alleged bribery and corruption on the football field.

Thousands of supporters of Jerusalems' Betar soccer team waved banners and made speeches demanding that the season's final results be declared null and void pending an investigation by detectives.

Betar are doomed to relegation from the first division after losing 2-0 at home to a team from Tel Aviv.

It was the second bitter pill in three days which the Jersulaem soccer fans had to swallow. Despite prayers by their most ardent supporters at the Wailing Wall, a sacred Jewish shrine, they were also defeated 3-1 in the annual cup match against a workers' side, Kfar Saba.

The deomonstrators, carrying a mock coffin marked "Israeli Sport," protested their club was losing out because it did not tolerate bribery.

They threatened to keep their children away from school and to persuade all the team's supporters in vital sectors like hospitals, hotels, transport, and food stores to go out on strike if the government did not order a full inquiry into current soccer scandals.

Ministers, parliamentarians, and football officials have expressed dismay at the situation.

Scenes at vital matches towards the end of the season resembled preventive actions against terrorist attacks, with road blocks outside the grounds and squads of police at the ready.

Despite precautions, angry fans attacked a visiting team from Haifa as they emerged from the dressing room at one stadium and delayed the game for 20 minutes.

Police had to escort players off the pitch after several important matches. Referees and linesmen were flown in from Holland to handle several games after attacks on Israeli officials earlier in the season.

Education Minister Aharon Yadlin has announced he may reduce the number of teams in the NationalSoccer League.

"We hav e reached the point where stern measures will have to be taken to prevent corruption and punish violence," he said.

Four motions have been presented to parliament complaining about the decline in competitive sport here, and the education minister said an expert committee will report to parliament before its new fall season.

"As it is played today, soccer is doing more harm that good to society," he said.

A leading footballer, Mordechai Spiegler, agreed. He said on television that if the security situation did not improve, the game would have to be banned for a while until tempers cooled.

The first division's top scorer, Moshe Romano, center-forward for Tel Aviv, complained he was recently stopped in the street and threatened he would not see his wife and child again if he scored the following weekend.

Ehud Olmert, an opposition member of parliament and member of its sports committee, said bribery rather than sport was now characterizing the soccer scene here.

Another Knesset member said he had information that at least a third of all national games in the two top divisions in the last two months involved pay-offs.

One judge tried to solve the problem his own way by simply banning the next game in his area on the grounds that the sport was dominated by violence and blackmail.

An appeal was taken to the supreme court, which over-ruled the distric judge's injunction, saying he had exceeded his authority.

It is certain, however, that the soccer scene will be closely scrutinized before the new season starting in the fall.

The New England folks have a saying that three Philadelphia lawyers are a match for the very Devil himself.

MARKS 50th ANNIVERSARY--W. W. Callan, chairman, R. H. Linam, president, and W. W. Callan Jr., executive vice-president are shown with Central Freight's old Number One truck. The firm is celebrating 50 years of operation in 1975.

Central Freight Observing 50th

W. W. Callan, founder and chairman of the board of Central Freight Lines announced Friday in Waco the beginning observance of Central's 50th Anniversary.

Callan started Central in July 1925 driving a used Model T truck between Waco and Dallas. Since then Central's fleet has grown to over 4000 units of equipment and operates between nearly 900 Texas cities and communities.

Central is the largest motor carrier operating solely within Texas and is owned by its employees through their purchase of company stock.

The contributions of its employees to its success has long been recognized, perhaps most notable in 1973 when Central was selected by the Texas Manufacturers Association to be the first recepient of the Ed C. Burris Award. The award was presented for outstanding achievements in building a better climate for business and industry in Texas.

Callan emphasized that this Golden Anniversary Year will be dedicated to all Central employes, past and present because it was through their efforts that Central has been successful.

Various contests will be sponsored within the firm and each employee will be presented a 50th year award.

Central has operated for 50 years under its original management.

Central's local manager is Alfred W. Taylor and terminal facilities are at 108 N. Lamar, Cameron.

Mammals Bulletin Available

For students of Texas wild fauna the new "Mammals of Texas" by Dr. William B. Davis is a highly valuable tool. This latest version of a text that has been popular for almost 30 years now is available as Bulletin No. 41 from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for $2.36 including tax.

More than 156 distinct species of mammals make their home in Texas, with its variety of soils, climate, vegetation, and topography. To fill the need for a suitable study guide on these animals, in 1947 Dr. W. B. Davis, then Professor of Wildlife and Fisheries Sciences at Texas A&M (now Emeritus), colaborated with Dr. W. P. Taylor in preparing a bulletin for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. In 1960 this was expanded and rewritten by Dr. Davis.

Growing demand gave rise to the recent reprint, for which the author, an international authority on mammals, agreed to update the information and make needed revisions in the species distribution maps.

New features include the addition of marine mammals, measurements given in both metric and standard forms, and completely up-to-date scientific names and classifications.

This revised, illustrated "The Mammals of Texas" is a defnintive source of information on identification, distribution, and life histories of these Texas natives. To order, send check, cashier's check, or money order for Bulletin No. 41 to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, John H. Reagan Building, Austin, TX 78701.

MDA Awards Grant For Research Center

The Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) has awarded a grant of $259,958 for the establishment of a neuromuscular disease research center at Baylor College of Medicine, Jerry Lewis, MDA national chairman, announced at a news conference.

The award is for the first-year support of a comprehensive research and clinical program, and brings the total amount being spent this year by MDA in Texas for research and patinet care to more than $1,475,000.

Motorists Urged To Watch Kids

School is now out in most Texas communities--and with it, will come children of all ages engaged in countless activities that will bring them near or upon the streets for the next three months. Texas Safety Association reminds motorists that the plea for caution toward children that was issued when school opened in the fall is now of even greater importance.

Gone for the summer are the regular hours during which drivers might expect crowds of children on their ways to and from school. No longer present in most areas are the crossing guards and school playground supervisors who provide adult protection for these youngsters.

Operators of vehicles will find the need for increased awareness, as protective measures for young pedestrians and cyclists will be operating at reduced efficiency during the vacation season.

TSA hopes Lone Star State motorists will double the lookout for children enjoying the summer's reward for nine months of hard study. Drivers should remember than these youngsters' young minds may be on other things, and take extra effort to watchout for them so they can return safely to their classrooms next fall.

'Texas First' Suggested For Vacation

"See Texas First!" That is the suggetion of Don Epperson, executive director of the Texas Tourist Council. A.A.A. reports indicate there is adequate gasoline available in all areas of Texas. "Texas has about everything you could want in a vacation," Epperson said, "and it's all close to home."

Few distant states can hope to match Texas scenically. From the beautiful piney woods of East Texas, the over 600 miles of surf and sand of our delightful Gulf Coast, lush sub-tropical area of our Lower Rio Grande Valley, the rolling scenic beauty of our Hill Country, the magnificent rugged mountain area of West Texas, and the wide open spaces splendor of our Plains Area. Texas has lovely scenery to match every mood and taste.

When it comes to history, Texas has had some of the most historical events in our great country. Every section of our state is rich in history and there are hundreds of interesting historical sites.

Major commercial attractions have been sprouting up the past few years throughout Texas. There are now over thirty of them and they range from some of the most veautiful caversn in the county, to family oriented theme parks, wild animals, water and sealife oriented attractions, "old west" villages, Indian reservations, historical wax museum, and many others.

Texas has so much more to offer it is impossible to list it all. If you want to beat the high cost of extensive vacations, this year plan to See Texas First.

Storm Tips For Mobile Homes

Texas windstorms, such as tornadoes and hurricanes, can take deadly aim on mobile homes with disastrous results, according to J. O. (Jim) Smith Jr., chairman of the Texas Insurance Advisory Association.

"Anyone who owns a home of any kind should be ready for a windstorm," Smith says "but mobile home owners need to be extra cautious because of their vulnerability."

Smith says the TIAA recommends several ways for mobile home owners to prevent loss of life and to minimize destruction:

*Use an anchorage or tie down system to secure the mobile home on a year-round basis.

*If neighbors are not tied down too, urge them to do so since their unit can be blown into others in a storm.

*Position the home to expose as little wall area as possible to prevailing winds.

*Use natural barriers, such as trees, for breaking the wind. Protection gained outweighs the danger of falling limbs.

*When windstorms are predicted, store or tie down awnings, cabanas, and other fixtures.

*Be prepared to leave the mobile home for more sturdy shelter, even if well-anchored, in the event of a tornado or hurricane.

"Tie down systems are relatively inexpensive and simple to install," Smith says, "but many mobile home owners don't take even this precaution. Some mobile have tie down straps included."

A booklet entitled "Protecting Mobile Homes from High Winds" can be obtained from any Civil Defense office or by writing the U.S. Army AG Publications Center, Civil Defense Branch, 2800 Eastern Boulevard, Baltimore, Maryland 21220.

The TIAA is an advisory organization with membership consisting of insurance companies writing approximately 90% of the property insruance in Texas.

Conference For FHA Set

The Area VIII Leadership Conference will be held in Trinidad on June 8-10, 1975. The theme of the meeting will be "The Time is Now."

Amy Wilhelm, Jonesboro, will be presiding. Mrs. Norma Parton, Homemaking Consultant, Texas Education Agency, is the coordinator for the workshop.

This is an annual leadership training conference sponsored by the State Department of Vocational Technical Education.

Approximately 150 Future Homemakers of America members from central Texas schools will be in the 3-day workshop while some 250 other chapter members and advisors will participate in the 3-day workshop. The Kerens FHA and YHT chapters will be hostesses.

Six Flags Open Daily

With nearly a half million visits recorded during the spring season, Six Flags Over Texas has begun daily operation for the summer months.

The entertainment center's vice-president and general manager, Dan Howells, said attendance through the Memorial Day weekend was ahead of last year's figures for the same number of operating days despite the worst spring weather in our history.

"We're particularly pleased with the increase in numbers of tourists from outside Texas," he said. "For example, our attendance from the upper Midwest is up a third over 1974's figures."

Six Flags Over Texas will be open daily during Labor Day, and then will return to a weekend-only schedule through the end of November.

Howells said all additions to the theme park's entertainment lineup arein full operation, including the new Rotoriculous thrill ride.

He said the park will continue to present top name stars in concert on selected nights during the summer season. Some of the entertainers already booked for Six Flags appearances are Ray Stevens, Barbi Benton, Chuck Berry, and Anne Murray.

In mid-May Six Flags Over Texas welcomed the 25 millionth person to visit the park since its opening in 1961.

40 Years Service Marked By TANE

Texas Governor Dolph Briscoe presented a commendation to Texas Alcohol Narcotis Education (TANE) for 40 years of service.

The official memorandum, congratulating and commending TANE was received by the organization's president, N. Lee Dunham of Waco, executive director, Dr. R. R. Holton, of Garland, Dr. S. Wayne Reynolds, chairman of the Board, and other officers.
